

The indications that you are on the right path are very simple : your tensions will start disappearing, you will become more and more cool, you will become more and more calm, you will find beauty in things which you have never, ever conceived could be beautiful.

The smallest things will start having tremendous significance. The whole world will become more and more mysterious every day; you will become less and less knowledgeable, more and more innocent - just like a child running after butterflies or collecting sea shells on the beach.

You will feel life not as a problem but as a gift, as a blessing, as a benediction.

Osho